

How Clergy, Chaplains, and Celebrants Can Assist Oregon Families to Care for Their Own Dead

Oregon families have the legal right to custody and control of their own dead. Clergy, Chaplains, and Celebrants play a vital role in helping families to know their rights and to consider whether engaging in aspects of hands-on care for their dead – sometimes known as a “home funeral” – is right for them.

Legal Authority of Families

In Oregon, the legislative authority for families to act as unpaid funeral services practitioners is found in ORS 432.005(23)(a):

SYSTEM OF VITAL STATISTICS

432.005 Definitions. As used in this chapter, unless the context requires otherwise:

(23) “Person acting as a funeral service practitioner” means:

(a) A person other than a funeral service practitioner licensed under ORS 692.045, including but not limited to a relative, friend or other interested party, who performs the duties of a funeral service practitioner without payment;

Ways You Are Empowered to Assist Families

Oregon families who are members of a religious congregation or have an active faith tradition may turn to their Clergy for guidance when a death occurs. Others may find themselves supported by a Chaplain in a hospital, hospice, or emergency response setting, or using a Clergy person booked through a funeral home. Some families rely on a secular Celebrant for assistance in designing or officiating a funeral or memorial.

Regardless of the circumstance, Clergy, Chaplains, and Celebrants can:

1. In anticipation of or at time of death, ask “What plans can we assist you in making?” instead of “What funeral home are you using?”
2. Provide the following information: “Under Oregon law, families may conduct any or all tasks commonly performed by a funeral home, except embalming (which is not required by Oregon law). This may include:
 - caring for the deceased (for example, bathing and dressing);
 - sheltering the deceased at home;
 - filing death notice, handling death certificate/transportation/disposition permit (families wanting to handle their own paperwork should request a packet from Oregon Health Authority’s Center for Health Statistics Registration Unit, 971-673-1160);
 - transporting the body home or to another location for care and viewing (sometimes called a wake or vigil), and to place of final disposition;
 - making arrangements for any ceremony and for final disposition (for example, with a cemetery or crematory, or obtaining county planning commission permission for a home burial).”
3. Support the family and their community in considering options for meaningful hands-on engagement in ceremony and ritual: bathing and dressing the body; visitation with the body at home or in another setting; making or decorating a shroud or casket; carrying and lowering the body and helping to close the grave or witnessing the cremation; creating meaningful, personal ceremony.
